Profile

A dedicated research enthusiast with a master's degree in Political Science from the University of Lucknow. Academic journey has been enriched through extensive research, international conference presentations, and collaborations with leading international journals. With two published research papers in UGC-approved journals (impact factor 7+), I have made meaningful contributions to the field. Key research interests lie in contemporary social science policies, gender culture, foreign policy and international relations theories. Actively participated in numerous seminars and workshops, which have enhanced multidisciplinary approach and sharpened analytical skills in these areas. Currently seeking to pursue PhD in Political Science to deepen research and contribute to academic knowledge. My goal is to explore and analyze complex political frameworks and contribute to evolving discussions on global issues through innovative research.
